

RIGHTS OF CRIME VICTIMS

As a crime victim, you have certain rights under the Connecticut Constitution.

You have the right to:

- Be treated with fairness and respect throughout the criminal justice process;
- Have the case completed in a timely manner following the arrest of the accused, provided no rights of the accused are shortened by it;
- Be reasonably protected from the accused throughout the criminal justice process;
- Be told of court dates;
- Attend the trial and all other court proceedings (arraignment, pre-trial, and sentencing) unless you are testifying, in which case the court may decide that you can't attend the trial until after you are done testifying;
- Talk to the prosecutor about the case;
- Have the chance to agree or disagree with any plea agreement between the accused and the prosecutor and to make a statement to the court before the court decides if it will accept the agreement;
- Make a statement to the court at sentencing;
- Request restitution for expenses or property lost or damaged because of the crime; and
- Get information about the arrest, conviction, sentence, imprisonment, and release of the offender.

Connecticut Constitution Article First, Section 8(b)